Lecture: “Finding the Inner Light: Researching our Quaker Ancestors”

Diane Gagel

Would you like to gain more intimate knowledge about the lives of your Quaker ancestors? Learn about the history, records, and basic beliefs of the Society of Friends. Understanding the religious practices of your ancestors can lead to more intimate information on their families.

Our Speaker

Diane VanSkiver Gagel, M. A., a retired college instructor, freelance writer, and professional genealogist, is the author of four books and numerous articles. She has a M. A. in American Studies, is the author of numerous articles, and five books.

Class: “A Story of Cindy Lou Who: A DNA Case Study” 3:15

Mike Gerding

Learn now adoptees can find their birth families by following along on a search to find biological parents and siblings using state and agency records, DNA tests, DNA matches and their public family trees, DNA match analysis tools, messaging, email, and social media.

Our Instructor

Mike Gerding is a GSWC board member, class coordinator, and German special interest group leader.
